SEMINAR REPORT

The Department of Urdu at Government Degree College, Rayachoty, organized an insightful two-day national seminar titled "Junubi Hind Mein Adabi Sahafat Ka Manzar Nama Taqseem-e-Hind Ke Baad" on March 14-15, 2022. This seminar focused on the evolution of Urdu journalism in South India after the Partition of India, highlighting its role in preserving regional identity, promoting cultural heritage, and fostering literary dialogue. The seminar attracted a diverse audience, including scholars, students, and Urdu enthusiasts from Rayachoty and beyond, creating a platform for meaningful discourse on the trajectory of Urdu journalism in the region.

The seminar began with an inaugural session led by Dr. Shaik Farooq Basha, the convener, who welcomed attendees and set the stage for two days of stimulating discussions. Dr. Basha highlighted the importance of exploring regional journalism, which has long provided a voice to local communities and bridged cultural gaps through Urdu language and literature.

Prof. Fazlullah Mukarram, Head of the Department of Urdu at the University of Hyderabad, delivered the keynote address. Prof. Mukarram offered a comprehensive overview of the evolution of Urdu journalism in South India since the Partition, discussing how regional publications have adapted to social and political changes over the decades. His talk emphasized the resilience and cultural significance of Urdu journalism in portraying Southern India's unique social landscape.

Prof. Khasim Ali Khan delivered an enriching address that delved into the characteristics of post-Partition Urdu journalism in Southern India. His discussion covered the challenges faced by regional publications, the adaptation of local dialects in journalistic writing, and the impact of regional issues on Urdu journalism. Prof. Khan pointed out that South Indian Urdu journalism has played a vital role in amplifying local voices, advocating for social justice, and preserving cultural narratives.

Another highlight of the seminar was the address by eminent Urdu professor S.A. Sattar Sahir, who presented a historical perspective on the evolution of Urdu journalism in South India. Prof. Sahir emphasized the contributions of early journalists and their role in shaping the socio-political landscape. He shared insights into the influence of literary journalism on readers' understanding of contemporary issues and the significance of Urdu media as a medium for intellectual discourse in South India.

Scholars, students, and Urdu enthusiasts actively participated in the seminar, making for an engaging exchange of ideas and perspectives. Participants from various universities and institutions contributed to discussions, raising questions and sharing insights that underscored the importance of Urdu journalism in addressing local issues. The discussions also highlighted the need for continued research and support for Urdu journalism to ensure its growth and relevance.

The seminar concluded with a vote of thanks from Dr. Shaik Farooq Basha, who expressed appreciation to all speakers, participants, and attendees. He acknowledged the valuable contributions of Prof. Mukarram, Prof. Khasim Ali Khan, and Prof. S.A. Sattar Sahir, as well as the dedication of students and scholars in making the event successful.

Dr. Basha emphasized that the discussions held during the seminar would encourage further exploration into the regional impact of Urdu journalism and inspire future contributions to the field. He also thanked the Urdu lovers of Rayachoty, whose presence and support added to the significance of the event.

The seminar on "Junubi Hind Mein Adabi Sahafat Ka Manzar Nama Taqseem-e-Hind Ke Baad" proved to be a milestone event for the Department of Urdu, Government Degree College, Rayachoty. It provided a platform for in-depth discussions on the contributions and challenges of Urdu journalism in post-Partition South India. This event fostered a renewed appreciation for Urdu media's role in promoting cultural heritage and encouraged young scholars to further their interest in the field. The seminar successfully reinforced the commitment of Urdu scholars to continue contributing to the legacy of Urdu journalism in the region.

Dear Lt. Venkataramana

I am very much pleased to send my letter of appreciation to you. Though in the initial stage you and your team had faced the technical glitch, it soon picked up, and the programme had gone well with great success and delight. It was due to your sincere effort, commitment and dedication. Thank you for all the endless hours of hard work you put in! You did an excellent job. It shows your passion for the work, which is incredible. Know that it is recognized and greatly appreciated by me. I was exceedingly satisfied and felt so happy that your hard work was paid at the end resulting in greater success of the webinar. However, I would like to express my sincere admiration, appreciation for your outstanding efforts in such short notice and offer my best wishes for you, your principal, and the group commander, Colonel Dinesh Reddy. Certainly, it is a feather in the crown for you in particular and the college in general. I was deeply touched beyond words. I must profusely thank you for having thought of me as a key speaker in the webinar. Hope and wish that many more such events will be organized in the future with the same zeal, commitment, and hard work.

With deep appreciation for your efforts and best wishes.

KEEP UP THE EXCELLENT SPIRIT OF WORK, COMMITMENT, AND DEDICATION.

WEBINAR REPORT

The NCC Department of Government Degree College, Rayachoty, held a significant One-Day National Webinar titled "Yoga for Constructive Living in COVID-19 Pandemic," on 21-06-2021 focusing on the importance of yoga for maintaining mental and physical resilience during the global health crisis. The event was designed to highlight yoga's role in building inner strength and immunity, crucial for handling the stress and health challenges brought about by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The keynote address was delivered by Dr. K.V. Raghupathi, an esteemed former academic from the Central University of Tamil Nadu, known for his contributions to wellness education and holistic health. In his session, Dr. Raghupathi discussed the profound impact of COVID-19 on global health and well-being, examining the physical, emotional, and societal toll of the pandemic. He highlighted how yoga, as an ancient practice rooted in Indian tradition, offers practical tools to improve immunity, reduce anxiety, and foster mental resilience.

Dr. Raghupathi provided participants with an overview of effective yoga practices that target the respiratory system and enhance mental clarity. He explained how daily yoga can significantly reduce stress, increase awareness, and promote a constructive outlook, even amid challenges. His presentation resonated with the audience, offering both theoretical insights and practical suggestions for incorporating yoga into everyday life.

The webinar was honoured to have Colonel Dinesh Kumar Jha, Commanding Officer, NCC, Kadapa, as the chief guest. Col. Jha addressed the NCC cadets and the broader audience, emphasizing the importance of maintaining discipline, physical fitness, and mental fortitude qualities that yoga helps cultivate. He highlighted how adopting wellness practices like yoga can support the NCC cadets' physical and psychological development, particularly during stressful times. Col. Jha encouraged the cadets to lead by example, promoting wellness within their families and communities.

The webinar attracted substantial attention, drawing participation from NCC cadets, college faculty, staff, and registered attendees from different locations. The event was also live-streamed on YouTube, where it received an impressive 600+ views, demonstrating broad interest and engagement. The participation of such a large and diverse audience reflects the relevance of the topic and the high regard for the speakers involved.

The seminar covered a range of key points:

- COVID-19 Overview: Understanding the physical and mental health impacts of the pandemic.
- Benefits of Yoga: Focused on enhancing immunity, reducing anxiety, and promoting mental peace.
- Practical Techniques: Simple yoga exercises for daily practice to strengthen the respiratory system and calm the mind.
- Importance of Routine: Establishing a regular wellness routine for resilience and well-being.

Participants engaged actively in the session, posing questions about specific techniques and the best practices for integrating yoga into their busy schedules.

Dr. Raghupathi's practical advice and encouragement to cultivate mindfulness through daily practice resonated well with the audience. The session inspired participants to consider yoga as a long-term commitment to health rather than a temporary response to a health crisis.

At the end of the seminar, certificates of participation were distributed to all registered attendees, recognizing their involvement and interest in the subject.

Lt T. Venkata Ramana, the webinar convener, expressed sincere thanks to Dr. K.V. Raghupathi, Col. Dinesh Kumar Jha, and all participants, whose presence and support contributed to the success of the event. He acknowledged the college administration and the NCC Department's efforts in organizing the event, as well as the support from technical staff who ensured a smooth virtual experience for all participants.

This National Webinar served as an impactful and timely initiative, encouraging participants to embrace wellness practices that enhance both individual and community resilience. By fostering awareness of yoga's benefits, the NCC Department of Government Degree College, Rayachoty, has taken a meaningful step towards promoting holistic health and constructive living during challenging times. The college anticipates future webinars that continue to advance knowledge, health, and wellness among its students, staff, and extended community.
